Letter to the People

that desire the purest food, best in quality, best variety, best service-rich and poor that pay their bills.

We find it a great pleasure to carry on our weekly system of accounts. We follow the markets of Boston, New York and anywhere that can offer us anything new and good. We place at your call the finest line of fresh eatables that can be found in any one market in New England. We hear the remark often from the traveling public "Somers, the variety you have here is better and greater than I see anywhere. Do you have trade for it." We say: "Norwich has a better class of people, rich and poor, than any city of its size in the United States." That holds them for a while, and it is so.

Now, we desire the co-operation, the assistance of the trade in this way: We have the goods; we want your trade. We desire that should you at any time order, and by some error or carelessness of a clerk find that everything is not just right, to notify us, for we'll right the wrong and, assure you there will be no stone left unturn ed to make our service to you satis factory. Our supply of Fresh Killed Native Poultry is worthy of your attention. For specialties and fancy out cuts of meats we excell. We are the only firm in this city that roasts its own Coffee. Shelf goods we carry a full line of the very best.

Three points of our business: First-Quality.

Second-Quantity and variety. Third-Satisfaction. We trust that with these points in view our business for 1909 will exceed any previous year. We thank you and court your patronage. Very truly yours,

"Five Arthurian Poems," by William Morris from the Eiston press, printed on hand-made paper upon a hand-press, in two colors, black and red, and artistically bound in blue crushed Levant morocco by his daughter, Miss Nellie G. Haskell of Norwich.

Each poem opens with a large ornamental block initial in black against the opening verse in red, in fine contrast to the deep black print upon cream laid paper. The lettering and edges are in gold leaf and green, there being about 200 mosaically inset green leather pieces in the golden decorations. The blind tooling is finely done. The inside cover lining and fly leaves are of a delicate gray marbled paper. Although an 8mo of only 45 pares it took months to perfect this volume, which is valued at $300. In its completeness it is a work of art.

Deputy Sheriff Casey and City Sheriff Martin arrested Mrs. Annie Burns of No. 41 Bradley street on a bench warrant, and she spent the night at New London police station, being refused ball, and will be presented before the criminal superior court here this morning. She is charged with being engaged in the white slave trade.

It is claimed that in 1908 John McNulty met May Burns, a 15 year old girl in New Haven, and he told her he would find her employment. He went to a telephone and communicated, according to the girl's story, with Mrs. Burns in New London, and the girl was sent to the place of Mrs. Burns in Bradley street, New London. Her ruin took place there where a woman named White took pity upon her and took her to the place of Mrs. Hattle Thuyer in New London, where the girl was cared for and later sent back to New Haven.

This story was told to Assistant State Attorney A. L. Alling of New Haven, county, who has been working on the case, and McNulty is arrested in New Haven, awaiting trial.
